5. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The closest prior art of Konya (US 5,937,396) teaches transferring currency electronically between accounts. The system allows currency to be immediately transferred from a first account to an ATM. The first account can be accessed in a number of ways, including remotely from a general purpose computer or from an ATM using a transaction card. The ATM provides the individual with a plurality of transaction choices such as the transfer of an amount of currency to a second account.

Another closest prior art of Stoutenburg et al. (US 6,488,203 B1) teaches performing a send money transfer transaction through a financial services institution includes storing transaction details on a data base, wherein the transaction details include a desired amount of money to be sent; establishing a code that corresponds to the transaction details stored on the data base; entering the code into an electronic transaction fulfillment device in communication with the data base to retrieve the transaction details from the data base; and determining a collect amount based on the transaction details.

In regarding to independent claims 1, 9-11, 17, 31-32 and 35, Konya and Stoutenburg taken either individually or in combination with other prior art of record fails to teach or render obvious in response to a subsequent request at the initiating terminal from the sender, account information for the associated recipients, including at least a portion of an account number, is automatically provided to the initiating terminal, wherein the system is configured to facilitate the transfer of money from the sender to one or more of the associated recipients by the selection of the account information, including at least a portion of the account number, corresponding to the recipient.

6. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
